Board Memo 134-2024: Update on the Potential Tropical Storm Across the Carolinas

Executive Board,

NAPS headquarters received the below forecast from Orin Wilson, the Office of National Preparedness, regarding a potential tropical storm across the Carolinas.

Attached (and also snipped below) is the 09/16/24– Monday, 5:00 PM EST forecast maps for Potential Tropical Cyclone Eight showing the forecast track and rainfall.

The attached excel spreadsheet lists all facilities that fall within the area forecasted to experience tropical storm force winds (i.e. greater than 39 mph).

At 500 PM EDT (2100 UTC), the disturbance was centered about 45 miles W of Cape Fear, North Carolina. The system is moving toward the north-northwest near 7 mph. A northwestward motion is expected during the next day or so, and the low will move inland across the Carolinas tonight and Tuesday.

Surface observations indicate that maximum sustained winds have decreased to near 35 mph with higher gusts. Continued weakening is expected during the next day or so, and the low is forecast to dissipate over the Carolinas by early Wednesday.

- Formation chance through 48 hours...low...near 0 percent.
- Formation chance through 7 days...low...near 0 percent.

The estimated minimum central pressure based on surface observations is 1006 mb.

Also, attached is the excessive rainfall outlook map for Potential Tropical Cyclone Eight with corresponding excel spreadsheet of post offices.

Network facilities falling within High, Moderate and Slight risks of flash flooding are labeled. Attached Excel file contains full list of postal facilities and their risk of flash flooding.
